

Colours Colour crossword

We love to attach meanings to things and colour is no exception. Over the centuries thousands of different colour associations have developed around the world. Red is used to symbolise danger and war but also passion, strength and good luck.

Colours don't always mean the same thing in every culture or in every religion. White, as a symbol of purity, is traditionally associated with weddings in Christianity. But in Hinduism it's the colour worn to a funeral. The traditional colour of a Hindu wedding dress is red because its seen as a symbol of purity, fertility and good fortune.
